

I subscribe to XM radio for similar reasons that I subscribe to cable TV. Freedom of choice. Free AM and FM radio has reached a state of near uselessness due to the amount of commercials that are run. If I am willing to pay the subscription fee, satellite radio provides should be allowed to deliver to many any content I choose. Limiting the deliverable content for satellite radio violates not only the providers' rights to free speech, but also my right to receive information in the manner that I choose and am willing to pay for.
